INTRODUCTION

In 1977, the California Office of Planning and Research contracted with Contra Costa County to develop a social profile. Contra Costa was one of three counties selected as demonstration sites to test the workability of a basic social indicator framework. The other two counties are San Diego and Tulare. The lead agency for this project has been the Planning Department, with the County Human Resources Agency providing cooperation and support.

This report has been prepared as one of two work products of the contract. It contains maps and tables of selected socio-economic data items from a wide range of subject fields (e.g., housing, health, education, income, etc.) which are focused on a description of "the state of the county" and the neighborhoods within it.

One of the primary purposes of this project is to integrate the data base into a common geographic data base, utilizing census tracts. Census tracts are spatial units, developed by the U.S. Census Bureau, that vary in size but contain an average of 4,000 persons. Unlike political or administrative units (cities, school districts, etc.), census tracts were designed exclusively to assist in demographic studies. Their most significant attribute is that of a stable data collection unit from which widely spaced time series data can be compared. Further, since there are 115 census tracts within the county (based on the 1970 census partition), community characteristics can be detected with relative geographic specificity.

The other work product to be developed under this contract is the Contra Costa County Social Profile, 1978: Methodology. This report has been prepared to document the experience of the development of a social profile for Contra Costa County, and to assist other counties which may wish to assemble social profiles in the future. It is a technical review of data limitations, pertinent literature, salient file characteristics, geocoding conversion methods, data analysis and display techniques, and potential data sources. Copies may be obtained from the Planning Department.

DATA DISPLAY FORMATS

The data in this Profile are presented in two formats: data tables and surface analysis maps.

Virtually all of the tables were generated from computer programs, primarily SYNTAX--a user-oriented program especially designed to construct crosstabulations and other tables. These tables contain the exact values of data items associated with each census tract.

Surface Analysis Maps

The evolution of surface analysis maps has added a new dimension to the display of socio-economic data. Whereas tables of census tract data are difficult to interpret without continuous crossreference to other documents, maps of social data are more direct and are interpretable by anyone familiar with the urban geography of the county. Further, comparisons can be easily drawn between adjacent tracts.

All of the maps contained in this report were computer generated (exclusive of the census tract base map). These maps, produced on interactive terminals at the Lawrence Berkeley Laboratories, show the distribution of social conditions and problems by coded crosshatch patterns for each census tract. The patterns are arrayed in a visually continuous order so that low intensity crosshatch patterns are associated with low data values, and high intensity patterns with high values. Each pattern corresponds to a range of data values indexed in a legend. Large scale insets are provided for highly populated urban areas where census tracts tend to be spatially small.

Currently the cost to produce a surface analysis map, as shown in this Profile, is approximately $12. This dollar amount accounts for materials, and programmer and computer processing time. Improvements in software characteristics are pending and further cost reductions are foreseen.

The type of output from this system is not limited to 8½" by 11" report maps. Maps can also be generated as microfiche, wall maps, and overlays. Colored maps can also be produced, but they tend to be several times more expensive. Also, other display diagrams (pie charts, histograms, etc.) can be generated.

DATA SOURCES

The data presented in this profile has been assembled from several sources. Most of the data originates from the 1975 Special Census and 1970 Federal census. Other data has been compiled from the files of local, state and Federal agencies.

1975 Special Census

Contra Costa County, in cooperation with all its cities, conducted a mid-decade Special Census during the months of April and May, 1975. The County Planning Department organized and operated the census under the direction of the State Department of Finance, Population Research Unit. The Special Census was conducted for the primary purpose of providing an accurate and official measure of the county's population in order that the County, its cities, and other districts might qualify for increased state subvention payments. The data is also intended to aid local public and private agencies in future decision-making by providing updated information on population, housing, and other socio-economic characteristics.

The census was conducted on a door-to-door basis, with over 1,000 enumerators attempting to interview every household in the county. Information from people who could not be contacted in person was gathered either by telephone or by contacting neighbors. All housing units, both occupied and vacant, were counted. Listed below are the data items gathered for each household and/or housing unit.

Data Items from 1975 Census Enumeration

- Number of Persons
- Number of Persons in Group Quarters
- Age and Sex of Each Person
- Employment Status of Each Person
- Household Income
- Workplace--Head of Household
- Workplace--Second wage Earner
- Marital Status of Household
- Household Racial/Ethnic Identity
- Education Level--Head of Household
- Length of Time Lived in Unit
- Type of Housing Unit--Single, Multiple, etc.

- External Condition of Housing Unit
- Tenure--Own or Rent
- Number of Bedrooms
- Monthly Housing Payment
- Occupancy Status--Occupied or Vacant
- Vacancy Status--Under Construction, For Sale, etc.

With the exception of marital status, all of the above data items are displayed in this profile. Some are shown as scalars; others as multivariable crosstabulations.

The Planning Department has also prepared another series of four and five variable crosstabulations of data by census tract from the 1975 Special Census. These crosstabulations are not presented in this profile, but a list of the tables may be obtained by contacting the Planning Department.

Census data has also been summarized for each of the 115 census tracts, 15 incorporated cities, and 38 unincorporated towns within the county. Individuals who wish to examine or acquire this set of data should contact the Planning Department to request a copy of the 1975 User's Guide to the Special Census for Contra Costa County. This report provides users with background and supplementary information needed to use the census summaries effectively.

1970 Federal Census

Even though 1970 Federal Census is over eight years old, it remains the only source for many data items which are commonly used in social profiles. It provides the broadest range of socio-economic data that has been collected within the last ten years. Some of the data items which are only available from this source include occupational status, disabled populations, and the age of housing stock.

Except where time series data was gathered, data from this census was used sparingly. Wherever possible, data from more recent sources has been presented.

Data from the 1970 Federal Census can be gathered from two different media. The Census Bureau issues computer print tapes (Fourth Count) of selected population, housing and household data items. Data can be printed onto user output by application of computer programs. The other source of census data is the 1970 Census of Population and Housing which is published in standard book form. Both media contain tables which are organized by census tracts.

Program Files

Another major data source was provided by the files of public agencies. Some of the most useful information for urban planning is the data that agencies regularly maintain in the course of administering their programs. Incidence of crime, public assistance caseloads, or infant mortality rates can all be highly revealing of community problems and conditions. This profile contains geocoded program data from several subject fields: health, housing, income and education.

The availability of program and incidence data carries two advantages. First, program data has special meaning to policy-makers because it tends to be a direct measure of how and where public resources are being spent. Second, unlike census data, program data is generated continuously and current data can be provided at frequent, regular intervals. In this manner, public authorities can be kept abreast of current community conditions in intercensal periods.

The conversion of raw program data into a format compatible with the Social Profile can be laborious, but the process can often be improved by modifications of agency record-keeping procedures. Several agencies were geocoding records and tabulating to census tracts prior to the onset of the Social Profile project, however most agencies have not engaged in this practice.

Where record content alterations are not possible, other methods are available by which program data may be prepared for inclusion in a social profile. The Planning Department has recently completed a computer geographic file which is capable of converting raw address data to census tracts electronically. The operation is dependent, however, on the availability of data file records on machine readable media.

Future Data Products

The Planning Department has collected or received access to additional data items not presented in this profile. However, these items were not ready to be published when this report went to print; if the publication of an addendum to this Profile is undertaken, it will include some of these additional data items.

The Planning Department anticipates that this addendum may contain such geocoded data tabulations as caseloads of juvenile probation, incidents of major crimes, updates of public assistance caseloads, current population estimates and housing counts by type (countywide and by city), and licensed drivers. Birth and death records should also be available, so that geocoded information could be presented for birth and death rates, selected causes of death, infant mortality rates, low-weight births, and births to mothers receiving late or no prenatal care. Further, the Department hopes to access, collect and process school enrollment, special education enrollment, reported cases of communicable disease, and voter registration data items.

PROFILE DESCRIPTION

The Social Profile has been divided into seven subject fields. In order, these fields are: demographics, health, housing, education, employment, income and transportation. Each subject field contains a set of computer-generated maps and a set of data tables.

At the end of this report, a fold-out census tract base map is provided, which can be used to identify the locations of specific census tracts.

Table Interpretation

Users may have trouble interpreting some of the data in the profile. By-and-large, the tables are self-explanatory, however some contain certain esoteric terms and apparent inconsistencies which demand further clarification. Additional explanations are provided at the conclusion of each subject field for these more complex tables.

Users should be aware of two anomalous census tracts, 3552 and 3511. Census tract 3552 contains the Concord Naval Weapons Ordnance exclusively. The few residential units which exist on the base house a small population of military personnel and their families. Census tract 3511 contains the retirement community of Rossmoor (part of the City of Walnut Creek) exclusively. Children and young adult residents are barred from permanent domicile in this community.

The structure of the tables follows a uniform format. Census tracts are consistently displayed along the stub (left-most column). Other data variables are presented along the column captions, or, as with three or more variables, incorporated into the stub framework. When the cells of a stub data characteristic contain only zero values, the horizontal data line has not been printed. This program routine applies only to data characteristics with absent values; total figures for each census tract are printed regardless of the quantities which may occur.

The number of pages per table varies. Some tables are on one page, while several multivariable crosstabulations run in excess of thirty pages.

DEMOGRAPHICS

Table D-1. Historic and Projected Population Growth, 1960-1990

The projected figures in this table are tentative estimates of future population changes. These figures are based on linear projections of earlier census data and empirical knowledge. The Planning Department anticipates that more sophisticated projections will be constructed in the near future.

Table D-5. Single Parent Households with Children, 1975

The column captions in this table indicate the number of households with children in a particular age bracket. Because some households have children in different age brackets, the sum of the households for each age bracket would constitute double counting and, therefore, has no meaning.

Tables D-6 and D-7 are similarly constructed.

HEALTH

Table HE-1. Incidence of Occupational Diseases, 1977

This table identifies employees who fell victim to a disease in the course of their occupation. Most of the diseases are the result of either encounters with poison oak or eye exposure to harmful chemicals. The data is based on reports filed by the offices of physicians and received by the California Department of Industrial Relations.

Each record requests information on two geographic sites: the residential address of the employee and the address of the site of injury. Both sites were geocoded by census tracts, but because of the poor quality of records (i.e., incomplete identification of sites) many records could not be coded. The differing totals for each site reflect the variations in geocode matching.

HOUSING

Table HO-1. Population Estimation, 1975

This table presents housing and other demographic data from which population estimates are derived. This table (and Tables HO-2 through HO-17) was produced for illustrative purposes only. It presents estimates of the county population by census tract as of January, 1975. Other tables in this document referring to 1975 populations are based on actual counts from the 1975 Special Census (performed in April of that year).

Current population figures can be generated since the Planning Department maintains a current count on the number of housing units in the county. These figures can be disaggregated (as they are in these tables) by census tract, city, city by census tract, unincorporated area, and countywide.

Table HO-19. Monthly Housing Payment According to Tenure, 1975

Tenure characteristics are more completely defined as follows:

1. Own--no mortgage or mortgage paid off
2. Own--mortgage not paid off
3. Rent
4. Other arrangements

Users should be aware that housing payments for owner-occupied units usually include fire insurance and property taxes.

Table HO-25. Overcrowded and Severely Overcrowded Housing Units, 1975

The overcrowding index is usually based on all major rooms within a housing unit. However, as the 1975 Special Census counted only bedrooms, the persons per room index was revised to reflect this lower denomination.

Table HO-26. External Condition of Housing Units, 1975

External housing condition characteristics are defined as follows:

1. Sound - There are no obvious defects or slight defects.
2. Deteriorating - There are obvious defects which do not extend over a large area.
3. Dilapidated - There are severe defects or extensive areas of defects, or the structure no longer provides adequate protection against the weather.
4. Unit of Inadequate Original Construction - A housing unit which has been constructed of makeshift materials, or one which has been inadequately converted from a structure which was not originally intended to serve as a housing unit.
5. Unit under Extensive Repair - A housing unit which is currently undergoing major external repairs or reconstruction.

Table HO-27. Age of Housing Stock, 1978

This table was generated by adjustment of the equivalent 1970 Federal Census table from the 1978 housing count. Demolished units, tabulated by census tract between 1970 and 1978, were assumed to have been built prior to 1940.

Table HO-31. Federally Subsidized/Insured Housing Units, 1978

Federal funding sources are typically defined as follows:

HCDA Section 8 - A rent subsidy program which seeks to subsidize rent payment by low-income persons throughout the area. The program operates by providing "housing assistance payments" to owners, developers and public housing agencies to make up the difference between the "fair market rent" of a unit (set by HUD) and the tenant's contribution toward the rent.

HUD Section 23 - A program providing low-cost privately owned housing to eligible families who might otherwise live in conventional public housing or who have been without housing assistance. Under the plan, the local housing agency leases structures from private owners and then rents the units to low income tenants at a rate equal to no more than 25 percent of their adjusted income. The difference between what the tenant can afford and the actual rent is made up by federal funds under an annual contribution contract between HUD and the local housing agency. This program is the precursor to the Section 8 program, and is being phased out.

HUD Section 236 - A rental and cooperative housing assistance program for low income families. Under this plan, the government makes payments to the mortgage lender in order to reduce the interest rate on multifamily project mortgages to as low as one percent. Rent is limited to 25% of tenants' adjusted incomes. HUD pays additional subsidies to cover the difference between the tenants' contributions and the actual costs of operating the project.

Conventional Public Housing - A housing program providing housing units owned, managed and operated by local governments. Communities wishing to establish a public housing program must first set up a Local Housing Authority. The LHA develops and owns the public housing programs, and is responsible for their management and operation.

FmHA Section 502 - A program of the Farmer's Home Administration providing direct loans to individuals to buy, build, repair, renovate, or relocate a home. The interest rate varies according to the applicant's adjusted income. Loans may be for 100 percent of the cost but the applicant must be able to meet the monthly payments with 20 percent of adjusted income and must be unable to obtain conventional financing at reasonable rates.

Table HO-32. Mortgage Lending Activity, State Chartered Lending Institutions, Loan Originations, 1977

Loan originations are mortgages negotiated and issued directly by a state chartered institution.

Table HO-36. Mortgage Lending Activity, State Chartered Lending Institutions, Purchased Loans, 1977

Purchased loans are mortgages originally issued by a mortgage broker, but subsequently bought by a state chartered institution.

EDUCATION

Table ED-1. Educational Attainment of Head of Household, 1975

This data item is calculated in units of school years completed. Sixteen years of school is generally identified with the completion of a 4-year college degree.

The 1970 Federal Census gathered educational attainment data on all adults over the age of 24 years. However, only heads of household (regardless of age) were identified in this table based on the 1975 Special Census.

Table ED-5. School Enrollment, 1970

Elementary school years are usually identified from the first to the eighth grade levels (years). High school is identified with grades 9 to 12.

EMPLOYMENT

Table EM-1. Labor Force Participation, 1975

The characteristics of this data item are briefly defined below. For more detailed identification refer to the User's Guide to the 1975 Special Census.

1. Employed Full Time - The person worked 20 hours or more during the preceding week.
2. Employed Part Time - The person worked less than 20 hours during the preceding week.
3. Unemployed - The person did not work at all during the preceding week, but actively sought work and was available for work.
4. Adult Student - A person 16 years or older was defined as an adult student if he/she was neither employed nor unemployed (by previous definitions), and his/her chief occupation was that of a student.
5. Not in Labor Force - This category includes all persons 16 or older not classified as employed, unemployed, or adult student.

INCOME

Table I-1. Household Income, 1974

Though the 1975 Special Census was conducted in 1975, data on household incomes was gathered for 1974.

Table I-3. Households Below Poverty and 125 Percent of Poverty, 1974

The poverty levels used in this table are based on the 1974 poverty guidelines for nonfarm families, developed by the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity. Poverty status was based on size of income and size of household.

Table I-4. Welfare Caseload as a Percent of Total Households, 1975

This table presents the total caseload of the public assistance programs Aid to Families with Dependent Children family group (AFDC-FG) and Aid to Families with Dependent Children where the parent is unemployed (AFDC-U). Both of these counts are displayed as a percent of the total number of households. A household unit is approximately compatible with either an AFDC-FG case or an AFDC-U case.

Table I-5. General Assistance Caseload as a Percent of Total Population, 1975

This table presents the total caseload of the General Assistance (GA) program by census tract. Unlike AFDC and AFDC-U cases, virtually all GA cases are composed of single individuals. For this reason, total population has been selected as the more relevant census denominator.

Table I-6. Children Count by Age Group as a Percent of Total Population, 1975

Displayed in this table are the number of children who receive public assistance under AFDC-FG, AFDC-U, Special Welfare Programs, AFDC-BHI, or General Assistance/Board and Care. The count has been distributed into four age groups. For each age group, the corresponding 1975 population count is presented. Prevalence rates (labeled "Pop %") are shown to the right of the related program and census data.

A tabulation of unborn children is included in the original Children Count program data. However, because there are no corresponding 1975 Special Census counts of unborn children, this "age" category has been omitted from the table. In 1975, there were 655 individuals in this category.

An examination of the prevalence rates within the Children Count table indicates that caution should be exercised in their use. Computations for two census tracts, 3120 and 3790, result in prevalence rates slightly greater than 100 percent for the age group of 0 to 4 years. Several conditions may explain this anomaly. First, the welfare data may not be accurate due to abuses by welfare recipients who falsely claim children as dependents, since this helps them qualify for or enlarge grant cash payments. A second reason for the discrepancy may be the time span between the counts; the Special Census was conducted in April, 1975, while the Children Count enumeration occurred in October, 1975. In this six month period, the census tracts under question may have experienced a net increase in population due to immigration and births. A third explanation may be an unintentional underenumeration of certain population subgroups. Many precautions were taken in the 1975 Special Census to ensure a thorough headcount; however, it is possible that a small percentage of individuals were missed.

This is most often the case with children under five and blacks.

Table I-7. Adult Count by Age Group as a Percent of Comparable Population, 1975

This table presents data on the number of "adults" who receive public assistance under one of several programs - AFDC-FG, AFDC-U, AFDC-BHI, General Assistance, General Assistance/Board and Care, and special welfare programs. The count has been distributed into two age groups: below 21 years, and 21 years or more. The first group is not a complete count of welfare recipients below the age of 21, but only of those recipients who qualify for assistance as an "adult." It is primarily composed of young dependent mothers or expectant mothers. Prevalence rates for this group were not determined from the total population but from the total female population in the age category "14-20."

The second age group, labeled "Count 21 Years and Over," contains program recipients from both sexes. Therefore, the corresponding census denominator used was the total population aged 21 years and over.

Table I-8. Food Stamp Recipient Cases as a Percent of Total Households, 1975

The Food Stamp caseload is presented in this table by census tract. The program data are displayed twice. In the first instance (FS Only), a limited tabulation of Food Stamp cases is presented. These figures include only those Food Stamp cases which were not also recipients of other public assistance programs.

Food Stamp caseload data is also presented as a complete count (FS Total). These figures include all Food Stamp cases whether or not they are recipients of other public assistance programs.

Data for total households are used to integrate census data with Food Stamp caseload data. The definition for Food Stamp case and household unit are approximately compatible. Both program data items are determined as a percent of the total number of households within the census tract.

Table I-9. Welfare Recipient Caseload, 1978

The Contra Costa County Department of Social Service prepares management reports about recipients of public assistance programs. The data is collected by type of program and disaggregated by census tract. These reports are composed of case counts of welfare assistance and food stamp recipients.

The counts for the following programs are in units of cases. The number of persons per case varies. Usually a case will encompass a multiple-person household, but it can also be limited to a single individual. Estimates of average persons per case provided have been developed by the Department of Social Service from the March, 1978 Eligibility File.

Special Programs

This category consists of a grouping of assorted public assistance programs oriented to specific target populations. Beneficiaries of these programs include Indochinese and Cuban refugee households, and families with adopted children. The average number of persons per case is 2.31.

AFDC (Family Group)

Aid to Families with Dependent Children-FG is a federally funded, County administered program for financially needy families with one or more children under 18 (under 21 if in school) with a parent who is dead, absent or incapacitated (totally disabled). Average number of persons per case is 2.72.

AFDC (Unemployed)

Same as above except that cash grants are awarded to families in which the supporting parent is unemployed. The figures in this category do not overlap with the prior category. Average number of persons per case is 4.18.

AFDC - Boarding Homes and Institutions

This program is the number of cases (dependent children) which receive AFDC cash grants in foster homes and institutions. It is not to be confused with the County funded General Assistance/Board and Care Category, which also places children in out-of-home care. There is only one person per case.

Medi-Cal

Medi-Cal is California's version of the Federal Medicaid program. It is administered by the counties, and provides medical assistance to needy persons. It differs from the Federal Medicare program in that Medi-Cal is not only broader in the extent of eligible recipients, but is also broader in medical services coverage. Qualified individuals may receive services such as prescribed drugs and nursing home care which are not available under Medicare coverage. Further, Medi-Cal pays all costs, compared to 80 percent of cost paid by Medicare.

Recipients of Medi-Cal services generally fall into three subprograms. The first is composed of the "medically needy only." This group includes those persons and families who would qualify for Federal welfare programs except that their incomes are too high. Eligibility is determined on the basis of age, blindness or total and permanent disability. Families which are deprived of the care of a parent due to the parent's death, absence, disability, or unemployment are also included in the "medically needy only" category.

The "medically indigent" constitute the second group of Medi-Cal recipients. Contained within this category are impoverished individuals and families as defined by a schedule of income classifications. Adults in this category are not part of the Federal Medicaid program. Funding comes only from the State and counties.

The third group are the cash grant recipients. All persons receiving AFDC or Supplemental Security Income automatically qualify for Medi-Cal.

The count labeled Medi-Cal is a summation of the first two subprograms. The count includes only noncash grant cases. Average number of persons per case is 1.52.

General Assistance

General Assistance is a County funded and administered welfare program which provides aid to persons in need who do not qualify for the other State and Federal programs. The count is primarily composed of single person cases, but the persons per case average is 1.02.

Table I-10. Food Stamp Recipient Caseload, 1978

The Food Stamp Program is funded by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and administered by the County to provide needy individuals and families with a subsidized means of purchasing food.

Recipients of this service may also receive other public assistance. The total number of cases of food stamp recipients has been disaggregated by these other programs to provide crossreference.

Figures in this table are in units of cases. A case is frequently composed of multiple persons. The column captions for this table are discussed below.

Special Programs

Food stamp recipients who receive public assistance from special welfare programs are included here. These programs include Cuban and Indochinese Refugee public assistance programs. This category is not to be confused with Special Programs under Table I-9, which is a total figure.

Food Stamp Cases Only

Food stamp recipients who are not receiving any other public assistance program. The average number of persons per case is 2.33.

AFDC (Family Group)

This count includes the number of cases of food stamp recipients who are receiving AFDC-FG (refer to same category in Table I-9).

Aid to Families with Dependent Children - Unemployed (AFDC-U)

This count includes the number of cases of food stamp recipients who are receiving AFDC-U (refer to same category in Table I-9).

General Assistance

This count includes the number of cases of food stamp recipients who are receiving aid under the General Assistance program (refer to General Assistance in Table I-9).

Total Food Stamp Cases

This is the sum of the previous five categories and is a grand total of all food stamp recipient cases.

TRANSPORTATION

Table T-2. Workplace of Wage Earners

This table displays only head of household and second wage earner if one exists. Tertiary members of the household who are also wage earners are not counted here. For each workplace location the number of heads of household and second wage earners are tabulated ("both") to determine the number of persons commuting to the area.

The second wage earner was assumed to be the oldest person in the family after the head of household, regardless of what that age might have been. This identification procedure therefore accounts for the inflated number of second wage earners who are not in the labor force (e.g., single parent households).

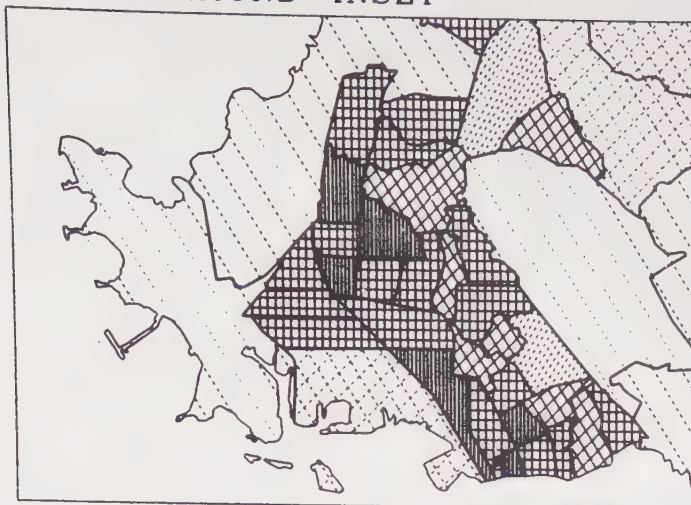

The Economic Area Selection method operated as follows. If a worker commuted to work within the city of residence, that characteristic preceded all other county internal geographic identifiers. If that worker did not, but worked somewhere within the remainder of the county, then the approximate area was determined (north, west, east, central). If the worker commuted outside the county, then the appropriate county was identified. NILF is an abbreviation for Not In the Labor Force.

For specific identification of the four internal economic areas, refer to the User's Guide to the 1975 Special Census.
